A sound apart

When Anubhav Agarwal visited the Deccan Herald office to meet Anubhav Agarwal, he was not just a director, but a man who had a fresh approach to work. He was not just a director, but a man who had a fresh approach to work. He was not just a director, but a man who had a fresh approach to work.

What made you accept the role?
It is definitely the urge that I have to work in a different way. The urge to give an opportunity to people who are not getting a chance to work in a different way. The urge to give an opportunity to people who are not getting a chance to work in a different way.

What has been your experience of working with a new team?
I have been working with a team that is very professional and hardworking. I have been working with a team that is very professional and hardworking. I have been working with a team that is very professional and hardworking.

Do you think Karnataka cinema is going through a transition of sorts?
There is a whole new trend of...

My studio in Bengaluru will be one-of-its-kind in South Asia.
